

Ceylon Spice Traders — Your SEO Ranking Study

We audited your site the way we audit every site: through the lens of what actually moves ranking. Here's what we found.

Ranking Opportunity Score — Significant Headroom

Your blog content is genuinely better than anything your competitors publish — but stale technical debt and disconnected product data are actively blocking pages from ranking or winning rich results they're eligible for.

■ What we found

- 01 112 of your 340 product pages are still carrying a "noindex" tag left over from a past site migration — Google can't rank a page it's been told not to index.
- 02 Your product schema exists but isn't connected to your real customer reviews — competitors are winning the star-rating search result you're eligible for but not getting.
- 03 You have zero Google Shopping presence despite having eligible products and a working store — an entire acquisition channel currently unused.
- 04 Your blog content is strong, but it has zero internal links to the products it's implicitly selling — the ranking value it builds isn't reaching your revenue pages.
- 05 You rank for your brand name and exact product names, but not for the category terms ("ceylon cinnamon sticks," "organic ceylon tea gift set") that actually drive search volume.

■ Quick SWOT

STRENGTH

Genuinely good blog content nobody else in your category has

WEAKNESS

Technical debt and disconnected data blocking pages from ranking at all

OPPORTUNITY

Zero Shopping presence — a wide-open channel your competitors also haven't filled well

THREAT

Competitors already winning star-rating results and gift-guide search placement you're eligible for
